

ABSTRACT

A multi-band inductive circuit in an integrated circuit, including at least two parallel branches respectively including a first inductance and a second inductance in series with a capacitor, the two inductances being coupled to each other.